Matson Wharf Activity.

It was a scene of wonderful activity round the Matson wharves yesterday afternoon. Stevedores and laborers were bustling back and forth unloading the most dreadful and fearsome looking weapons of war off the Lurline. Along the roadway was a line of gun-carriages and army wagons that made the place look like the chief seat of transportation in time of war.

The unloading of the munitions from the steamer went on at a surprising speed. The heavy pieces were handled in splendid style and one old salt who was standing by and watching the doings was heard to mutter "Honolulu may be in the middle of the Pacific but they sure can unload about as smart as any place I ever seen."

Campbell in Good Form.

Captain Campbell was in excellent form yesterday afternoon. Most of the members of the Ancient Mariners' club had taken the train to Waianae to see how the good ship Nordsee was getting on. So it was up to Captain Campbell to keep things going. He did.

He referred to a piece on the front page of yesterday's Advertiser with regard to a man addressing the "Commercial Advocate" in Honolulu, "Philippine" Islands. There was a note to say that the sender had had his attention drawn to the fact that there is but one "I" in Philippines. "Huh," said the captain, "I guess that fellow never heard about Dewey going to Manila." He was asked what that had to do with the spelling of the name. "Well," came the answer, "Didn't Dewey knock 'I' out of the Philippines?"

There was a large silence while the two reporters and visiting captains who were present, thought over the inner consciousness of the joke. This was broken by the advent of a man with a paper and a loud exclamation about the rise in the price of beets.

Captain Campbell waited till the worst of the talk was finished then he murmured, "And yet they grow the largest beets in all the world in Honolulu." "Is that right?" inquired the innocent biter. "I never heard about beets being grown here." "At any rate," answered the kindly mariner, "I heard about two policemen being found asleep on one beet and if that ain't the world's record for size I don't know what is."

Then a drummer who sells cordage, note-paper and cross-jack leach lines came in and the stock man from the back of the store stated that the supply of blue paint was running low, while, in the sad distance of Nuuanu avenue a cornet player could be heard practising that touching tune, "Knocking, knocking, who is there."

for San Francisco probably some time this evening. The exact hour can not be named as it is not known how much fuel she will have to take on board. The time of starting will be named as soon as the vessel arrives and it is known how much fuel is needed and how long it will take to pump it into the tanks.

No Fuel by Wireless.

With reference to an Advertiser editorial on the subject of wireless telegraphy and the possibilities of it in connection with the Panama Canal and its enabling vessels to pass Honolulu without touching here for orders, an old salt on the waterfront yesterday made a short and succinct remark. He switched the chew over to starboard and said "Well, by Gosh, they can't send oil and coal by wireless."

AMUSEMENTS

At the Orpheum.

There has been no falling off in the attendance at the Orpheum in spite of the tremendous gatherings at the Princess Rink. Messrs. Oro and Earle and the pretty chorus girls have been driving dull care from the heads of the thousands who go to the show in a way that has been most cheering. The program this week is exceptionally good; couldn't be better if the company tried or if the audience made its own selections. Manager Cohen struck the key note with his cheap vaudeville and he has got the public into the fashion of going out of doors at night for a little amusement instead of moping around the house killing mosquitoes.

Cowboys on the Plains.

A picture that is filled with snap and sensation is to be shown at the Empire Theater tonight under the title "Tales of the West." It is a rattler from start to finish and is known to all motion picture men as a "thriller." And there is fun enough in it to keep the audience in good humor during the evening. Perhaps the feature film should be "Vercingetorix," (Gaul's Hero), because it is a Pathe and beautifully colored. It is a historical number that will be enjoyed by everybody and it is instructive and consequently should not be overlooked by children of a school age. A bit of fierce comedy is shown in "Trying to Get Arrested." In the class with wrinkle chasers this film has been in demand all over the mainland since it was first released by the manufacturers.

Carlisle's Last Week.

Mr. Carlisle withdraws from the Park Theater on Saturday and will take a couple of weeks' rest. He sings a coon song this week with good effect. The feature tonight will be the "Fish Pirates", a picture full of exciting sensations and extremely interesting. Other good pictures will make up the program. Some time ago, through an oversight a delayed announcement on a billboard stated that "Cohen at Coney Island" would be shown. Many persons visited the Park for the purpose of seeing the laughable picture and were disappointed. The film was recalled from the Coast by cable and will be shown this Friday night only. Patrons of the theater who were disappointed that night will be given free tickets on calling at the Chambers Drug Store at the corner of Fort and King streets.

PIRATE KID

made from an old jib, and the Mokoli came back to Honolulu for distillate and some help.

Wednesday morning the Mokoli and the James Makee, the latter with a deck load of coal, started back to Kona the drifting vessel.

They found her in a bad lee drift with the wind blowing strongly and had a hard time to pass her. The Mokoli took the first wave and passed another one to the Mokoli. The waves were high and the swell was running with much snubbing of cable and a hard time for both the towsmen.

A Heavy Incubus.

Meanwhile the Nordsee was dragging nearly a hundred tons of iron chain and anchor. But, with great effort, the two tuggers managed to get her into the lee of Waianae. Here was smooth water and it was hoped that the anchors would catch. But the water was too deep.

The captain of the Nordsee hailed that he wanted the Makee to hoist iron with her steam winch. He said that his winch was busted.

They tried this but there was nothing doing. To hoist that weight of metal meant a strong metal hawser and there was too much swell to pass it. Then Johnny Scott sang out to cut cable and make for a harbor. The had nothing to cut chain with aboard the ship, so a dinghy was lowered and the captain himself came aboard and borrowed a hawser saw with oil and several extra blades.

From 1 o'clock yesterday morning until nearly 2 o'clock they worked on that chain, which hung from the bow of the vessel down to where the anchors swayed five hundred yards below. They had a tackle on each side to prevent accident and, when the man with the saw gave the final thrust, he had to leap back to save himself from a blow from the jumping chain.

Towed to Anchorage.

Relieved of her incubus of hanging chain and anchor, the Nordsee responded to the pull of the tugs and she was gradually brought back against the wind, until she was in water shoal enough for the Makee to drop anchor and leave her swaying astern.

Eben Low, the man whose genius made the "Retrieving" of the ship possible, came ashore in the Mokoli and tried to tell how it all happened. The last words he was heard to say were "And Johnny Scott worked like a demon" and then a large, deep snore.

For three days trying to salvage a vessel. Without sleep, without rest, always on the qui vive, working their muscles to death and taking all the chances of a deep-sea tow, the men who worked to bring the big vessel back to port have performed a really wonderful feat and one that Honolulu should be proud of.

ATCHERLEY AGAIN SEEKS FREEDOM

son Dr. Collins had for believing that Dr. Wayson was telling the truth, and why he placed more credence in the statements of Dr. Wayson than in his (Dr. Atcherley's) remarks. Dr. Collins responded that the subsequent actions of Dr. Atcherley had shown him to be irrational. Atcherley was inclined to argue the matter, but Judge Lindsay cut the discussion short by informing Dr. Atcherley that he could not argue with the witness.

Then Atcherley introduced the resolution, passed by the Board of Health, allowing any duly licensed physician to treat patients at Kalaui Receiving Station, providing the treatment and medicines to be used were told to the board in detail. Atcherley insisted that the resolution was passed as an insult to him and introduced it as evidence of Dr. Wayson's enmity to him. He proceeded to give a full history of the case but was called to order by Judge Lindsay, who told him that he must confine himself to proper cross-examination and not try and make a speech to the commission at that time.

His Leprosy Cure.

But Atcherley was determined to prove that the resolution was passed with the direct intention of hitting him, and that it originated from a desire to know what his method of treatment for leprosy might be. Dr. Collins did not believe such to be the case and Dr. Atcherley did not manage to get anything from him.

The next witness was Dr. Sinclair. His testimony covered much the same ground as that given by Dr. Collins. He said that he had examined Dr. Atcherley in January and again in July, and that on both occasions he had reached the conclusion that the patient was suffering from paranoia. The doctor said that he considered Atcherley dangerous to the community.

He said that at any time he might take it into his head to associate any person with Dr. Wayson and his fancied persecution. There was a lot of sparring over paranoia, symptoms, delusions and other technical subjects, which resulted in shedding little or no light on the subject under discussion. Atcherley hied back to the old Board of Health resolution time and again, and tried in vain to ring in the name of J. Lor Wallach. Mrs. Atcherley kept prompting him, and on several occasions he started to ask questions which she had evidently suggested, only to break off with the words "Oh, no, that has nothing to do with it."

Those Leper Pictures Again.

Atcherley asked Sinclair if he believed him to be laboring under a delusion in regard to his claimed leprosy cure. Sinclair said that he did. That was Mrs. Atcherley's opportunity, and the leper pictures, which she religiously carries about with her wherever she goes, were called into evidence. They were shown to Dr. Sinclair and he was asked if he did not consider them good evidence that Dr. Atcherley had grounds for claiming that he has a leprosy cure. Sinclair said no, that some of his patients had shown as much improvement as the photographs indicated.

Then Atcherley tried another tack and hied him back to the sewer pipe. "If I said that I have seen people in the sewer pipe would that necessarily be an insane delusion?" "No," came the answer, "I have seen men coming up out of sewer pipes."

Fits in the Sewer.

Then the doctor asked several questions in regard to the sewer pipe business, ending up by asking why it should be considered a delusion if he said that he had heard Chester Doyle having a fit in the sewer. Sinclair admitted that Doyle might possibly have a fit in the sewer if he wanted to, but expressed the belief that such a state of affairs is hardly likely to come about.

Atcherley harped on the question as to whether or not Doyle could have a fit in an 8-foot sewer, should he feel so inclined, and he spent fully half an hour trying to get Sinclair to admit that Doyle might get into a storm drain and have a fit should he feel so inclined.

Then Atcherley wanted to know if it were not well within the bounds of reason that telephone wires might be stretched through the storm drains. Sinclair admitted that he could see no reason why such a thing could not be done, but he looked mighty skeptical over the probability of such an arrangement. Atcherley was preparing to try more of the same when Judge Lindsay shut him off.

Walter G. Smith, editor of the Advertiser, was the next witness called. In response to the questions of the County Attorney, Mr. Smith went over the ground, telling of Atcherley's visit and the communication which he left, and which was afterward published in the Advertiser. He stated that the communication was run as written, and that the introductory article is a true account of the interview which he had with Dr. Atcherley, though not a verbatim one.

Asked how Dr. Atcherley appeared on the night that he brought the communication to the Advertiser office, Mr. Smith said that the man seemed very nervous.

Those Punchbowl Ghosts.

When Atcherley started his cross-examination, he trotted out the Punchbowl ghost story, that others than himself had seen the marvelous doings of bodiless spirits. Atcherley read the story through and then said that he considered that story as extraordinary as the one that he told. Mr. Smith agreed with him on that point, and suggested that the reporter who wrote the article probably intended it in a spirit of levity; otherwise he should consider him (the reporter) a fit candidate for examination before the Lunacy Commission.

Mr. Smith was the last witness at the afternoon session. Judge Lindsay announced that an adjournment would be taken until 8 o'clock, when the hearing would be taken up in the office of Sheriff Jarrett.

Evening Session.

Dr. Bruce McV. MacCall was the first witness called during the evening session. He was submitted to an hour's grueling cross-examination by Dr. At-cherley, but he persisted in his story, and declined to become entangled in the hundred and one conflicting lines that Atcherley threw out.

Again the communication, published in the Advertiser, was put in evidence. This time it was County Attorney Cathcart that did the reading, and Atcherley became very much excited. When Cathcart reached the place where it states that the Punchbowl demonstrations were the work of "the gang," referring to Dr. Wayson, Chester Doyle and others who were alleged to be practicing for their fiendish work upon him (Dr. Atcherley), Atcherley became very much excited and shrieked:

"Yes, they did it. They were practicing. I said so then and I say so now. That gang made those Punchbowl demonstrations while practicing in preparation for annoying me."

Chester Doyle followed Dr. MacCall on the stand. In response to Dr. Atcherley's questioning, Doyle swore emphatically that he had never been in a sewer, either for the purpose of having fits or with any other end in view. He told of Dr. Atcherley's threat to blow his head off, and told of his arrest of the doctor in the editorial rooms of the Pacific Commercial Advertiser last month.

Atcherley's cross-examination brought out little, other than a few passages at arms between the two.

Finally the hearing was continued until 8 o'clock this afternoon.

MORE HOTELS SOON NEEDED

Chamber of Commerce, the appointment of J. L. McLean of the Inter-Island Steam Navigation Company, as member at large is assured.

Secretary Wood submitted the following report:

Secretary's Report.

Honolulu, Aug. 26, 1909. Chairman and Members of the Hawaiian Promotion Committee.

Gentlemen: We have just concluded mailing copies of our folders to all of the parties throughout the Old World to whom we purpose sending copies of the 1910 Floral Parade Poster. A letter from Mr. Harry Mist, dated August 2, acknowledges receipt of package of signed letters and addressed envelopes which we forwarded to him to be sent out with the mailing tubes containing posters, when he is fully ready, which he expects to be by the end of this month.

Mr. Mist writes, "I am doing all the drawing on the lithographic stones at the publishing house myself and there are six stones to make. It takes me from one to two days to finish a stone. As soon as a proof has been made of the poster, will begin at once on the post cards and stickers."

We are now preparing for mailing copies of our latest folders to the eight hundred odd addresses throughout the United States and Canada to which copies of the Floral Parade Poster will be sent by our agent at San Francisco, Mr. Scott, upon receipt of the same from Mr. Mist. Special letters in addressed and stamped envelopes were forwarded to Mr. Scott by the Manchuria to be sent out by him when he mails the posters. I believe we have arranged for some very effective advertising along these lines, advertising that should secure early and good results.

Mr. J. A. McCandless, who has always taken a keen interest in promotion work, writes under date of August 12, from Ellensburg, Washington, that he had visited the Hawaiian Building a number of times and said it gave him pleasure to state that Mr. Childs, Mr. Cooper and the young ladies were doing splendid work for Hawaii.

A prominent grower of pineapples in Florida writes that "The pineapple business in Florida being in danger of becoming abandoned, I want to know something of Hawaii as a possible future residence and what the chances are of continuing pineapple growing there, asking for all information available."

From a friend traveling in Switzerland, who subscribes herself a member of the Hawaii Promotion Committee, we are in receipt of a large number of addresses of prominent people throughout Europe who are likely to come this way and to whom we are asked to send our printed matter.

I am pleased to be able to report that our folders may now be had at Brentano's, Fifth Avenue and 27th Street, New York, also at their Washington, D. C., house and their European establishments as well.

The following extracts from a letter just received from our agent at Los Angeles, Mrs. Headlee, are of general interest:

"I now have six of the separate lectures arranged as follows:

Monday—"Hawaii, Old and New."

Tuesday—"Honolulu and Oahu by Automobile."

Wednesday—"Hawaii, Its Resources and Opportunities."

Thursday—"The Volcanoes of Hawaii."

Friday—"Touring the Hawaiian Islands."

Saturday—"Life in Hawaii."

I am very much pleased with the appreciation shown.

I am so hopeful of results for this season's work. I shall make a special effort with the public school teachers this winter and have already asked a place on the program of the Teacher's Institute to be held here during the holidays. I am planning to fill the assembly hall every day if persistent effort will do it. We have had good audiences all the time thus far.

I find from the local office of the Pacific Coast S. S. Company that negotiations are still under way for Salt Lake Elks excursion but that the difficulty lies in securing sufficient cash guarantee."

The excursion outlook seems to be brightening right along.

Mrs. C. R. Hamlin writes from Santa Barbara, Cal., under date of August 9, as follows:

"I am preparing to take a party of California and Pacific coast people to the islands early in January. If this trip is successful, I intend to take several parties each year.

I was advised to write to the Peck-Judith Company of San Francisco for rates of hotels, cost of touring the islands, trip to Hilo and Kilauea, etc., and they referred me to you.

If you will advise me as soon as possible what rates I can make at the best hotel (we expect to be there about seven days) what it will cost to take all the trips by automobile and trolley, I shall appreciate it. If there are other trips of note please tell me about them. I hope this will not give you too much trouble but if it is out of your line will you be kind enough to ask the proper persons to send me their rates?

I hope to have fifty in each party; I shall not take fewer than twenty-five. If you will send me literature on the islands I shall be under great obligations to you."

It is needless to say that a full line of our advertising matter will at once be sent to Mrs. Hamlin.

The following letter from Mr. Franklin Matthews, the New York Sun's brilliant editorial writer and general correspondent, is of decided interest:

New York, Aug. 13, 1909.

My Dear Mr. Wood: Your recent contributions, very handsome indeed, to my peace of mind and, I hope, to our mutual advantage, in the way of more photographs of Hawaiian scenes have arrived in due time and I am simply delighted. They are exactly what I wanted and I am most grateful. Depend upon it, Hawaii is getting as powerful a boost as I can give it every time I speak. I always advise those in my audiences to try to go there. I declare it the Dreamland of the universe and the grandest looting spot in the world. I run over its charms and I'll venture to say that your little paradise never had a more earnest boomer than I am; it may have had a better one, but none more glad to do this work of love.

I am sure that after my work of next winter you'll hear from my talks. Again I express my deep obligation to you. I hope we'll meet again some day.

Cordially yours,
(Sgd.) FRANKLIN MATTHEWS.
Respectfully submitted,
H. P. WOOD,
Secretary.
